

“END OF A CHAPTER” - Murray - M - 20s/30s

INT. APARTMENT - DAY

Murray is a perpetual dreamer and schemer; he is mid-break-up with his partner Fen and is trying to convince her to stay.

Murray: Just wait! Wait and hear me out. Fen, I love you: I've always loved you and I always will love you. And that's pretty big of me, considering how much I know you don't believe in me. I'm like the Easter Bunny, to you. Like Santa Claus!

You never believed in my “Portable Hammock” idea, not even when the ad went viral! You didn't believe I could create a social media app for pets, or a Youtube channel where I pitched a different business every day. And some of those made money—not for me, sure, for the people who stole them—but they were good enough to steal! Since we've been together I've been a crypto trader, a streamer, a sports drink mixologist and a personal trainer in training. And I know you're off working a day job so you don't see a lot of that ... but tell me you don't come home and feel the positive energy, the- the potential-

Wait. Please. I'm asking you to trust me just one more time because the next thing I come up with ... the next thing I know is going to be the big one. Right now? This is the end of a chapter in my life. In my biography: where you make the hard decision on whether to stay or go right before I make it! Do you really want that choice to be that you leave? And then have to read about my success from afar, while I'm buying up boats and helicopters and private islands like some warlord?

I don't know what the next idea is going to be. But I can already feel how important it is. Doesn't that mean something?!